UCLA Professionals Share New Approaches to Help Spiritual Leaders Guide Congregants Through Cancer

For a congregant who has been diagnosed with cancer, the guidance of a religious or spiritual leader is often integral in their treatment decisions. But what are the best ways to help a congregant and their family through this devastating illness? To help find answers to those questions, more than 35 Los Angeles area religious and spiritual leaders came together recently to learn from UCLA professionals about how they can help those diagnosed with cancer.
